How do we usually meet new people?

Here are a few popular options:

At work

In a bar, club, a party

Our friends introduce us each to other

Instant Messaging search

Online Dating sites

Let's briefly review some advantages and disadvantages and rate them from 1-poor to 5-the best.

Let's put the following criterias on our scorecard.

START: How easy it is to start talking?

SURVIVE: How easy it is to withstand a rejection?

TRUST: How can I trust that the partner is really the person who he/she is claimed to be?

ROMANCE: Does it lead to really romantic relationships?

* At work

START: 3 - difficult to find what to talk about, sometimes we have to work.

TRUST: 4 We know our colleagues others quite well... but there still can be a surprise

ROMANCE: 3 Not really... it's more about friendship

SURVIVE: 3 colleagues can find out about you..

* In a bar, club, a party

START: 3 loud music, noise... difficult to find what to talk about..

TRUST: 3 It's really to hard to be sure...

ROMANCE: 3 It's rather more about one-night-stand then long-term relationships.

SURVIVE: 4 you'll have to go to the other place...

* Our friends introduce us each to other

START: 4

TRUST: 5 A friend can guarantee

ROMANCE: 4 Again... it could lead you to friendship.

SURVIVE: 4 Usually we can not be friends anymore... and our common friend may suffer.

* Online Dating sites

START: 5 Just drop a message!

TRUST: 4 If his/her profile is fully completed then you could know about the one even more than ROMANCE: 5 If a person goes to online dating website and creates a profile – he/she is really focused on dating.. not friendship. Otherwise you can read about it in one's profile.

SURVIVE: 5 Easy come – easy go!
