Nowadays there are many cultural online dating websites like Arab Singles. I just wanted to know if these are better than the normal online dating website or not.

I like international dating site most, like http://www.czech-single-women.com/. But it depends, there are definitely people who like a dating site of one culture.

Cultural Dating websites may be good or bad when you have not time to met some one because of busy schedule then its good but confirm that you are not chating with fake person other wise that will change whole the diceand if you are living out of country and out of city so cultural websites is way to communicate bee cause all time we can not continue the call but only and only disadvantage is that only fake person. so good luck

I am using facebook, I found some groups for dating, but there are few members that they are actually looking for dating. A lot of fake profiles (hot women) and I have doubts that I am going to find someone on facebook. But it can be a way to connect with people.
