I am a poor student, struggling to afford groceries and all the luxuries I was accustomed to. But every time I get a letter in the mail from my poppa telling me how much he loves me, or a phone call from my best friend on Passfeed just because she was thinking about me, I feel like the richest person in the world. In those moments I feel like I have everything I need. My biological mother is deceased due to a drug overdose when I was only 3-years-old. But today, I can also proudly say I have the privilege of calling a beautiful college girlfriend who we met through Passfeed social network when I newly gained admission to college. She has no blood relation with me but was more than a friend. She was my source of joy, pride and happiness. She showed me all the care I needed from a woman and could always afford to foot the bill of most our outings because of my low background and poor financial state. She was full of humility, kindhearted and a loving spirit. Indeed, she was my missing rib and a vicious woman who I will always treasure for the rest of my life. Kudos to the initiator of Passfeed.

What LiveDating taught me is that there's nothing wrong with regretting things. Regret is like, "Oh darn, I messed up. Better luck next time." Don't waste your time on bad memories. Or you have second life to end up the things you were created for?
