On dating sites, you can find not only a husband, but also to run into a cheater, gigolo, marriage swindler. The scheme of work is simple, but effective: attract woman's attention, make her to fall in love with him, and then to ensure that the woman willingly began to send money.

You just need to use websites that have anti-scam engines, like Nexus Date.

Such engines manually verify every user and if there is any fishy activity on their account, they get blocked.

A huge amount of scammers on dating sites is a usual thing today but I found the one that is secured from fake profiles. Mariya club is a good one but for those who look for Ukrainian or Russian woman to marry. in order to be sure that women are real I ordered contacts and a meetings. I could take my credits back if something was wrong but fortunately I did not have any complaints

As I know, dating scammers always ask you for money or gifts or something. You should not send them anything until you meet them offline.
