I'm interested in these two girls. The first one is really awesome, friendly, cute and I can feel she likes me a bit and we had more conversation already. But, she has that common/average appearance. (it seems to be safer to choose her).

Another girl is very-very attractive and really beautiful. While talking to her I was amazed that she is really good. But we communicated not to much and I even not sure whether she is single and whether she likes me.

The trick is that they are close friends and I don't want to destroy their relationship.

Do you know the proverb 'A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush'. It is better to have a few really, than seek to have something more and more and more, whatever you have. Bigger, better with the elusive hope that future will be better.

Try to project the sense of this great idea. Look around: millions of people are chasing some elusive desire, try to be better than someone, gain such heights, to become better and more of their idols.

You can spend a whole life searching for and achieving the stuff and people you can happily live without and in the end just sprayed.

Do you really need it? Naturally, all that you need is to perceive adequately and do everything within reason: to learn, to improve, to live in society, to love...

When an end in itself turns into an unhealthy fanaticism it's a great trouble. As they say: stop and prioritize.

And if you are going to chase 'the best stuff' during the whole your life trying to catch 'two birds from the bush' you can really lose everything.

Think of this ending! All you good ..And good luck

In the life of any man or boy may appear dilemma when you have to be torn between two beloved not because of meanness, but because of the banal inability to understand yourself.

How to choose between two girls? Ask yourself whether it is worth to choose if you doubt?

Companion must share your life viewpoint: Lovers of night clubs will not share private life harmony with old-fashioned snob. There are actually a lot of similar life examples. But this rule has an exceptions. Think, maybe she just help you to change anything in your life? You should learn better that she wants and what she loves before making a correct and more appropriate choice.

Of course, being between the devil and the blue sea, you can show generosity and, leave them the choice, because there is plenty more fish in the sea. However, avoiding the problem is not a solution. You should not downplay their interests, if you stay alone, then surely lose.

How to choose between two girls? Think about it, maybe someone of them loves you? Or just want to spend a fun time with you? What if they only want material benefits that may gain from an alliance with you? Some may go to the trick to test the feelings of the girl. The main thing is not to overreact.
