So I'm an 18 year old HS senior and I have a girlfriend who's 17 years old and she's a junior. Next year I'll be a college freshman and she'll be a senior and the college is close to her. We are quite happy together but I wonder if this relationship has any kind of stigma. Seeing as I'll be in college, I'm not sure whether or not it would be strange or creepy seeing as she is in HS still. It's just a year difference but still, is this uncommon/strange?

I find it OK. If you want to continue your relation, you can plan it accordingly.

I don't think that there's a stigma on that kind of relationship. The age gap is fine! Unless, you are becoming unsure about your relationship, aren't you?
