
Subject: Why there is need for relationship advisor?
Posted by relationshiptips on Thu, 22 Jun 2017 11:18:09 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Hello, Friends!

When it's about the relationship and its troubles, we mostly love to take advice from friends and family members. But, Why there is still need of relationship advisor? Why we can't handle the troubles at our own. The reason behind this is taking many advices from different peoples but if we get advised from a relationship advisor's which is practical and better in results and can lead better results in our relationship.

Subject: Re: Why there is need for relationship advisor?
Posted by leavesfall on Fri, 25 Aug 2017 08:49:59 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

We want to see other point of view and maybe friends faced someday such problem too and they know how to act. And also it's juts complains and when you complain it makes you feel better

Subject: Re: Why there is need for relationship advisor?
Posted by GerardGold on Fri, 29 Sep 2017 13:24:21 GMT
View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

Most people struggle to manage their own relationships, leave alone dive advice to others. Relationship advisors, on the other hand, are professionally involved with hundreds (maybe even thousands) of couples and understand the general dynamics and consequences of certain actions. When you ask advice from a friend, it's like asking him or her what should you do with a toothache. Pull the tooth, have it fixed, or will it settle on its own? How would they know? But somehow when it's about relationships, everyone has an advice.

As a dating coach, I talk to many singles seeking to start a new relationship, which they want to make successful. But the reason why their previous relationships or attempts to have one failed is that they keep making the same errors. This is where a relationship advisor can identify common patterns and work with the client on consciously changing their habits in interacting so that the new connection has a chance to succeed.
