there's this girl that i like & on Friday i was staring into space & i was staring at the trash can & she was walking by while i was staring into space. then later i was staring at the wall & when i looked over i see her looking at me & smiling while she had her hands on her head. then the next day in class i heard her saying "i don't know why he looks at me"?

I think, you're assuming things up. Better to start talking to her and see where it goes.

You've piqued this girl's interest. Now you need to have the courage to start a conversation with her. This will help you understand what you will do in the future.

You should definitely meet her. Don't be shy, get in touch. Do you like this girl?

Talk to her and get to know each other, then start to ask him what he feels on you
