

---

Subject: How do I fix someone else's problem?

Posted by jeremy2692 on Tue, 08 May 2018 15:20:43 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

So I have a friend, a very special friend actually. Just last night, she came to my place sobbing. She was in full pain; I can really see it. She told me something about her affair to a guy I didn't even know. And the problem is she has a boyfriend, they've been together for 4 years now since that new year's party dating service. She wants me help her amend everything, that I am the only who understands her. But I'm not really sure about this. First, I can't stand on the fact that she's cheating on her bf. Secondly, she wants me to talk to her bf and end everything between them. It's not that easy! What should I do? How do I fix someone else's problem?

---

---

Subject: Re: How do I fix someone else's problem?

Posted by Champion on Wed, 23 Jan 2019 02:26:36 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

If she really believes upon you, I think you must try to resolve her problem while doing meeting with her BF.

---

---

Subject: Re: How do I fix someone else's problem?

Posted by MrGreener on Wed, 24 Jul 2019 06:13:33 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

It's hard when the other party is not cooperating. You should start looking for loopholes

---

---

Subject: Re: How do I fix someone else's problem?

Posted by breakupshop on Wed, 29 Apr 2020 01:40:33 GMT

View Forum Message <> Reply to Message

---

You can't fix someone else's problem. You have to either decide to do what she asks and still be friends with her, or not do what she asks and run the risk of not being friends anymore.

---